GREEN ROSE

Dr. J. E. Oldham Has One Blooming in His Yard.

Dr. J. E. Oldham has blooming in his yard on Clay street a green rose bush, now covered with a profusion of blossoms. The plant was there when he bought the place. The flowers are the same color as the leaves, are shaped like ordinary roses and are slightly fragrant. This is the only bush of the kind in this city.

War Stops Immigration.

The European war has cut down immigration into the United States to the lowest point in many years. During this month only 22,000 aliens entered the port of New York. This compares with 108,504 this month a year ago, according to figures obtained at Ellis island. More American refugees arrived during the month than immigrants—about 35,000.

London, Oct. 2.—The battle of the Aisne, now nearing the end of its third week, soon will outstrip in respect to time the great contest fought at Mukden nearly ten years ago, but still no decisive result has been achieved.

The French official communication issued Thursday night, condensed into about thirty words, was one of the shortest given to the public since the war began. It records that progress has been made by both right and left wings of the allied armies, but gives no details or the extent of the progress between the lines.

Military experts believe the great claws, as they have been described, continue to open to clutch at the outspread wings of the German army particularly the right, which forms the upright portion of the L, and now has its back to the east, fighting with desperation to prevent the French left from encircling or smashing it along most of the front, estimated at 180 miles in length.

MR. RENSHAW RATIONAL

Change For The Better Reported Yesterday Morning.

The condition of Mr. John M. Renshaw who was shot in the head Sept. 26, had remained unchanged until yesterday morning when he showed the first signs of returning consciousness.

When asked by the nurse if he wanted water, he surprised her by saying: "I believe I do." When it was handed to him he reached out and took the glass and drank it unassisted.

His pulse is good, his temperature normal and the wound doing well. There is a black spot near the eyebrow and it may be that the bullet is there and not in the brain. An X-ray examination failed to find it.

Death of Frank Deckert.

Frank Deckert, aged 50, circulation manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal, died suddenly Wednesday morning in St. Joseph's hospital, Bowling Green, from apoplexy. He was taken ill at a hotel Tuesday night and lost consciousness in ten minutes after he was stricken. He leaves a wife, to whom he was married only two months ago. Mr. Deckert was well known here and had many friends who will learn of his death with much regret.

Died From Excitement.

Excitement caused by an approaching storm caused the sudden death of John Turner, aged 68 years, a well-known citizen of Metropolis, Ill., while he was riding in a skill on the Ohio river with Arthur Trail. THE SCHOOL EXHIBITS

In New Building One of The Genuine Features of The Fair.

OFFICIALS ARE IN CHARGE.

Excellent Show in Handsome And Commodious New Building—Work of the Pupils.

(Contributed.)

If there is one department of the Pennyroyal Fair that, more than any other, exhibits the true wealth and bespeaks for the city and county a great and prosperous future, it is the splendid and elaborate show of the Christian county rural schools, and the public schools of the City of Hopkinsville.

This show is exhibited in a handsome hall about 36 feet square, erected solely for school displays, and built jointly by the Fair Association and the Christian county Board of Education and the Board of Education of the City of Hopkinsville. The building is divided by partitions into two halves, the south half being used by the city schools and the north half by the rural schools of the county.

The display of the city schools consists of 4 divisions. The high school exhibit of manual training, drawing and furniture is very elaborate, considering that this department has been in operation but one year. Many articles are the equal of similar ones found in high class furniture stores. There is in this division also a very fine display of literary and commercial work, all of which reflects merit and training of both teachers and pupils.

Each of the grade schools is represented by an abundance of written work, number work, drawings, paper cuttings, hand-made articles, penknife work, and concrete representations of child stories. The latter item is deserving of special mention as is readily discernible, when your eyes fall upon the scenes of "The Home of the Three Bears," "Eskimo Life," and "My Old Kentucky home." These scenes afford a concrete representation of those familiar and much loved stories for children.

Let's pass to the north side of the building. While Hopkinsville has done herself proud, the rural schools of the county have done themselves prouder. A larger number of the schools have contributed and it is with difficulty that space is found for all the work contributed. Most every school represented has contributed an abundance of written work, drawing, paper cutting, story representations, needle work, crocheting, manual training work, etc. Things are too numerous to permit mention of all of them. Some of the things deserving of special mention are "Boonesboro 1775," built of little logs by the Gracey Graded School, and other articles such as wagons, wheelbarrows, engine, wheel, etc.; old fashioned coulter plows, and old fashioned banjo made of a pudding pan; harrows, airship, fireless cooker, a steel lawn swing, tables, product maps, etc. Everything displayed

PEACE IN MEXICO

Is Believed To Be Assured By The Retirement of Carranza.

NO OFFICIAL WORD YET.

Outcome Is Awaited With The Keenest Interest Throughout.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Unofficial reports reaching the Administration from Constitutional sources here conveyed further assurances that permanent peace soon would be restored in Mexico through the designation of Fernando Iglesias Calderon as Provisional President pending an election.

No official word from Mexico City concerning the convention which was called to meet to promulgate plans for a general election, or from the peace conference between Carranza and Villa, has yet come.

FOUR CONFERENCES

To Discuss The Warfare To Be Made on Tuberculosis.

Four section Conferences on tuberculosis will be held in various parts of the country during the months of October and November under the direction of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, according to an announcement from the headquarters of that organization to-day.

These Conferences, designed to stimulate the war against tuberculosis in the sections which they serve, will be held in St. Louis, Mo., on October 6, 7, and 8; in Philadelphia, Pa., on October 14; in Bangor, Me., on October 22nd; and in Atlanta, Ga., during the last week in November. Prominent anti-tuberculosis workers from all parts of the country will address the various conferences.

Optimists vs. Pessimists.

"Is the World Growing Better?" will be the subject of a debate which will be held at the Vanderburg county Sunday school convention at St. John's Evangelical church Oct. 29, near Evansville, Ind.

here sets forth the part in an undeniable manner, that the greatest wealth of our county is the talent of our boys and girls and that the mission before us is the proper and early development and unfolding of the powers of our young and growing manhood and womanhood. "Full many a gem of purest ray serene, The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear; Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

Many hundreds of persons have visited this department already and thousands are yet to come. Many have pronounced this the best part of the Pennyroyal Fair. And, indeed, it is a thing of beauty and a HALF-MILE DASH.

THREE-QUARTER DASH.

Yesterday was school day at the fair and the attendance was enormous, even in the forenoon. The chief drawing card was that school children and school teachers from all over the county were on hand, the fair giving them a special price. There were some attractive exhibits in the morning in horses, mules, jacks and ponies and in the afternoon some of the best speed events, notably the 2:25 stake trot for $1,000, the 2:25 pace for $400 and the Pennyroyal Derby for $300.

The awards in the agricultural department will be made to-day, including many special prizes. The principal stock rings will be in saddle horses, roadsters and ponies. The poultry awards have been made as well as those in the floral hall exhibits, but space will not allow them to be given in this issue.

REGISTER TUESDAY.

November 3 will soon be here and the voters of Hopkinsville will have some most important matters to settle at the polls. The voter must deal with measures of vital importance not only in the nation but in his own city. The election of a Senator and a Congressman and the approval of the Democratic administration is a duty no Democrat should fail to perform. Here in Hopkinsville we are to pass upon the local question of deciding between the present and the newer forms of civil government; between the councilmanic form of the third class cities and the commission form of government. Here is a question of vital importance, one that should have the serious and studied thought of every voter who wants to see Hopkinsville continue to prosper and keep abreast of the other third class cities. Practically all cities of this class are preparing to adopt the commission form charter for 1916. The first step to qualify yourself for voting is to register and unless you are sick or absent next Tuesday you will have no other opportunity to register for one year. You should also bear in mind that there will be a primary election next August and you cannot vote in that election unless you indicate with which party you intend to affiliate. A great many Hopkinsville voters spend Sunday at home and then go away for the week. If you are one of these you should should arrange to be here Tuesday and get this duty—for the highest duty of citizenship is to cast an intelligent and patriotic vote—off your mind, and be prepared to vote upon the settlement of any question that may come up for the ensuing year. Register, Tuesday.

In the United States District Court at San Francisco Mrs. Wong Sam, an aged Chinese woman, was found guilty of holding in bondage Loy Gum, a slave girl. Evidence was presented showing that the girl was smuggled into this country and sold for $3,900. After she had worked out this charge she was still held, under threats that if she attempted to escape she would be buried alive.

Two hundred and twenty-five girls and twenty-five teachers escaped with only their night clothes on when fire destroyed the main dormitory of the Alabama Normal College at Livingston, Ala., early Wednesday. The fire which originated in the heating department, caused $60,000 loss.

The artistic beauty of the Cathedral of Rheims, which suffered in the German bombardment of that town, never can be restored, in the opinion of Whitney Warren, the New York architect, back from Rheims where he inspected the famous structure.

The story that Von Kluck's right wing was turned Wednesday, turned out to be one of the many inventions of the war correspondents.

Gifford Pinchot fainted at Erie, Pa., after making a speech and it was found that he was suffering with ptomaine poisoning.

STAR OF THE PHOTOPLAYS

Ruth Stonehouse Has Won Recognition for Her Characteristic Delineations.

Ruth Stonehouse is a wonderfully interesting little actress. Though not yet twenty years old, she plays leads and does it so well that you are anxious to see her again. The "Colorado Girl," Miss Stonehouse is called, because she lived in Victor, Colo., where her father is an expert in mining operations. The remarkable grace of Ruth Stonehouse.

Miss Stonehouse is due to her being a dancer, a professional at that. Her ability in this art makes her apt in many roles for which otherwise she would not be eligible. It is equally great, to meet her out of them. She is vivacious, interesting and pretty, and is considered one of the best leading women in photoplays today. Miss Stonehouse has appeared in such productions as "The Other Girl," "The Grip of Circumstance," and "The Hour and The Man."

Object Lesson in "Movies."

In "The Tie That Binds," a two reel drama, Lamar Johnston plays the part of a burglar who is captured in a bank after an exciting fight with the watchman. After he is sent to prison his wife married his rival, and when the convict is released and seeks to see his child, the stepfather, realizing the evil effect that he might have upon the little one, orders him away. The desperate man steals into the house where the little family lives. Through the window he sees some one sitting in a chair. He can see only the back of the chair and a man's hat which he recognizes as belonging to the other man. In reality his own child sits in the chair and has put on the hat to "play papa." The ex-convict raises his pistol and is about to fire when the child suddenly gets up in the chair and he realizes that he was about to take the life of the one dearest to him. The shock makes him resolve to reform his ways.

Prohibition of Celluloid.

The prohibition of the celluloid film, which has taken place in France, does not seem to be warranted, according to some of the moving-picture men of this country. The insurance companies of the United States have enacted rigid regulations for the protection of patrons of these theaters by requiring that the apparatus be entirely enclosed in a casing of metal and asbestos, and, notwithstanding the fact that there now are more than 12,000 of these institutions in this country, which are in almost constant operation, the number of film fires is very small. The quantity of film stored at one time in one of these booths is so slight that, under ordinary circumstances, no great amount of harm could be done if the entire stock of film should be destroyed.

Tragedy of the "Movies."

In order to perfect the films of the wreck and life-saving scenes in the coming camera production of "Hearts of Oak," the members of the company went to Long Branch to take part in a rehearsal at Monmouth Beach, where the coasting schooner, the Charles R. Buckley, was wrecked. D. H. Turner, who plays the part of Luke in the film version, was swimming from the wreck towards the beach when he struck a dead body, which he pulled ashore with the assistance of one of the life-savers. It turned out to be the body of a member of the crew of the wrecked schooner. The camera man, Jack Corwin caught the incident and thus real tragedy will be depicted in the mimic wreck scene of the "Hearts of Oak" feature films.

Too Much Realism.

Adele Lane has been having a lot of fun lately, as have also her fellow players, for the director has been putting on a burlesque entitled "Meller dramer." Miss Lane is the "heroine," and the dangers and indignities she is not subjected to are not worth mentioning. In one scene Miss Lane is supposed to faint, and she threw her head back so realistically and suddenly only that her head caught the actor who supported her under the chin and nearly knocked him out.

Al Jennings' Life to Be Portrayed

BUTLER'S ONE BIG MISTAKE

Chestnut Curis, Accidentally Removed From Head of Guest, Replaced on Pate of Another.

"Tenafly's jag list contained some startling errors," said Norbert R. Pendergast, the Wall street man whose residence is in Tenafly.

"Yes, some of the errors in the original list were so remarkable that they reminded me of Brown's dinner party. Two gentlemen sat side by side, one with a magnificent head of chestnut curis, of which he was inordinately proud, the other with a bald pate so shapely and shiny that he was proud, too.

"Well, as the butler was serving the soup, he reached over the man with the superb curis, and his cuff button caught in a curl, and off came the entire crop on the button like a huge fish on a hook.

"The butler was horrified. He jerked the wig off the button and clapped it, quick as a flash, on the bald head beneath his hand. Unfortunately, though, he had moved a couple of steps, and the head he clapped the wig on was that of the bald man, who was proud of his baldness."

ENGAGEMENT ONLY NECESSARY.

At Odds With Webster.

Professor X, one of the old school, always objected to the pronunciation of "woond" as though it were spelled "woond." One day he stopped a student in the middle of a reading with: "How do you pronounce that word, sir?"

"Woond," replied the student.
The professor gave him a sharp look and said: "I have never found any ground for giving it that sound, sir."

Youth's Rapid Rise.

Manager (hiring office boy)—Well, my lad, what do you say?
Applicant—Before I take the job, sir, I'd like to know if there's any chance of promotion.
Manager—Well, as to that, it depends on the boy. The last one we had here owned the whole place before he'd been with us two months.

The Crucial Test.

Lady Passenger—This storm is horrible. Is there nothing further, captain, that you can do to insure our safety?

Steamer Captain—We have done all, madam, that lies in the power of man, and nothing remains but to trust in the Lord.

Lady Passenger—Dear me! Is it as bad as that?

"Father used to have to hurry through his work in order to get to the golf links in the afternoon," said Maymie.

Striking Effect.

"Is you g'ineter wear dis new kind of colored hair?" inquired Mr. Erasmus Pinkley.

Facts About the Heart.

The weight of the average person's heart is only 11 ounces, yet so powerful is it that it does enough work every day to lift 120 tons a foot high! Your heart is, in fact, one of the most wonderful power machines for its size in existence. It beats about 70 times a minute, and with every beat drives six ounces of blood through the body. In a year the heart beats 30,000,000 times, and drives over 5,000 tons of blood through the body! Three score years and ten is a man's lifetime, and during that time his heart has moved enough blood to outweigh half a dozen of the biggest ships in the world! Let us look at this in another way. A pint of blood weighs roughly a pound, so that a little over three gallons of blood are forced through the heart every minute, or over one million five hundred thousand gallons a year.

Lepraphobia.

The horror of lepers is a religious horror. The Scriptural writers were not good at diagnosing diseases, and their accounts mix up leprosy with several other ailments that are highly infectious. Leprosy is not nearly so fatal as tuberculosis, and it is not so easily "catching." In fact, some doctors and nurses of lepers, who have attended them for years hold that it is not spread at all by contact. The terror still inspired by the traditions of the disease Doctor Rucker of the federal surgeon general's office properly dubs lepraphobia. At the meeting of the American Medical association in Atlantic City he denounced the inhuman treatment of lepers and proposed the founding of a federal leprosy sanatorium.

Nautical.

It was in New York. The sea-faring man was steering a zig-zag course, yawing now to starboard and now to port. EVIL IN CROSS BREEDING Weak and Degenerate Stock Has Been Evolved in the Population of Dominican Republic.

The bulk of the Dominican population are mulattoes, and the Spanish mulatto has proven in the main a weak and degenerate stock. The undesirable results of the Spanish-negro cross have been evident from the earliest times. The severest judgment upon the Spanish mulatto that I have ever read is contained in the official report of a governor of French Santo Domingo written before the close of the seventeenth century, and but few writers on tropical America dissent from the unfavorable point of view, writes T. Lothrop Stoddard in the American Review of Reviews.

Certainly the mulatto population of the Dominican republic seems to bear out these pessimistic judgments. They are patently a feeble folk and lack ambition and endurance, both physical and mental. Good physical types are rarely found outside the pure white or pure black elements. Tuberculosis and leprosy are rampant, while other diseases and alcoholism continually enfeeble the stock. The degeneracy of the Dominican population cannot be laid to the climate, which is unusually healthful, especially the interior uplands, and foreign whites thrive with elementary precautions regarding diet, sanitation and clean living.

Santo Domingo's only hope seems to lie in prolonged tutelage to some foreign power which will assure such conditions of order, and good government as will permit the development of the country's splendid natural resources and implant the fabric of civilization. It may be that in course of time the mass of the population can be raised to that plane of political efficiency now reached only by the small elite of the towns, but it is certain that the only way by which this will ever come to pass is a long period of peace and prosperity under foreign guidance and direction.

THIS MODERN EVENING GOWN

Garment Moved Good Old Ethnologist to a Remembrance of Forms of Salutation.

Her evening gown made the good old ethnologist stare, for it had neither sleeves nor back, and in the skirt of thin white silk a panel of lace, running to the knee, revealed the flash of—yes, the good old ethnologist stared. Then he said in his good and simple way: "You are very beautiful, my child. That gown is a revelation. And do you know what it reminds me of? It reminds me of the form of salutation practised in Ethiopia."

"In Ethiopia, when a guest arrives, the host, as a sign of submission, begins to disrobe himself. He takes off this, he takes off that, and he would strip himself entirely did his guest not beg him to stop. The guest, of course, gives the signal long before things have gone as far as—as far as—"

The old ethnologist with a smiling gesture indicated the young lady's gown. Then he resumed:

"Other nations, too, as a sign of hospitality, practise this disrobing act in various minor forms. Thus the lifting of the hat—isn't that the same thing? Isn't it the beginning, perhaps, of the removal of the coat, shoes, and so forth?"

"The Japanese peasant actually does remove his shoe, as I remove my tile, in salutation. And the people of Arracan remove both shoes as a salute of welcome when out of doors; while indoors they remove their stockings also."

"And so I tell myself, as I look at your new gown, that we also are now adopting the disrobing act as a signal of welcome and hospitality—only, of course, we carry it farther, as we carry everything farther, than mere savages."

"And as I look at you I am tempted to say in the phraseology of France: 'Couvrez vous, mademoiselle, couvrez vous.'—Exchange."

Make Navigation in Fog Safe.

The statement of Captain Roberts of the New York does not clear up this second case of ships in a fog knowing each other's proximity and constantly communicating, yet unable to avoid collision. If the Pretoria's captain was out of the regular summer course for east-bound transatlantic liners, that requires some explanation from him. And when he chose to go ahead, after the New York had signaled that it had stopped to avoid a collision, he assumed a certain responsibility for which he must account. Nevertheless, it is not yet clear that any real blame attaches to him. But real blame does attach to rules and conditions of navigation which make possible two collisions within a few days between vessels in a fog, but fully aware of each other's nearness and of the course each was pursuing.—New York Tribune.

New Destructive Insect.

An unknown insect has been discovered by Mr. Winthrop, a research student in Prof. Maxwell Leroy's department at the Royal College of Science, London. It has been named the golf green fly, because it destroys the tender and delicate grass on putting greens. In the earlier stages of its existence (looking for all the world like a brown seed in its chrysalis stage) it conceals itself in the stem of the grass. In the last, or fly stage, it is a tiny dark brown insect scarcely distinguishable from a midge. It belongs to the same group as the wheat pest, the Hessian fly.

WHEN JOHN L. "BROKE AWAY"

In Eight Years of Abstinence From John Barleycorn the Former Pugilist Has Saved $100,000.

Eight years ago almost to a day John L. Sullivan, unshaven and unkempt, emerged from a bar of the Grand hotel at Broadway and Thirtieth street, stood for a moment looking back at the door, and then walked a certainly uptown. It was 8 o'clock in the evening, and the former pugilist brushed shoulders with well-groomed people hurrying to the theater. He was the derelict in the stream. In his face there was a half smile, but it wasn't a pleasant one.

At the corner of Thirtieth street "Merry" Cohen and a newspaper man, with both of whom he was acquainted, He growled something in response to their greeting. "I was apparently about to pass on, but he paused and turned toward me."

"I've just been turned down in that barroom for a drink," he said. "I wanted one drink more and didn't have the price. They didn't give it to me. They put me out. They didn't send the proprietor or the manager to put me out. They sent the porter. I've spent $5,000 over that bar. And they put me out because I wanted a drink and couldn't pay for it. There's only one thing you can figure out of a proposition like that. Quit drinking! Tonight I quit."

The former champion's friends expressed indignation over the treatment he had received. It roused no spark of anger in "the big fellow." He was too filled with the sense of shame and mortification. Still brooding over the indignity he had suffered, he accompanied Cohen and the newspaper man to Murphy's saloon, at Sixth avenue and Thirtieth street. Cohen ordered a drink. Sullivan filled his whisky glass to the brim.

"Boys," said he, "here's the last for me."

That's the true story of John L. Sullivan's last drink. Eight years have passed, and the John L. Sullivan who was tottering on the edge of the gutter looks eight years younger today than he did that night. And he has $100,000.—New York Correspondence to Cincinnati Times-Star.

REAL ORIGIN OF "SHOW ME"

Secret Service Man Tells How Phrase So Generally Applied to Missouri Started.

"You'll have to show me—I'm from Missouri."

How often you have heard that phrase, and—incidentally, how tired you have grown of it. But maybe there was a time when you wondered where it originated.

Matt Knapp, a secret service detective of Kansas City, says it grew out of the enactment of the Missouri marriage laws. Prior to 1831, Missouri had about the zero in marriage laws, Mr. Knapp says. Any couple who had the inclination and could find a justice of the peace, or a preacher, could join hands for better or worse, and didn't have to say anything to the state about it.

No questions were asked about ages, or consent of parents, and unwilling justices and preachers seldom were found. Other adjoining states strove for years to get Missouri to pass some state marriage laws, because young people from Kansas, Iowa, and other states could step across the line, holler at a justice, and be married in hurry-up style, and there was no state regulation of it.

In 1831 a law was passed making it a misdemeanor for a preacher or a justice to marry persons not having a state license, and setting the age of marriageable women at eighteen years. If the applicant for license did not know the age of the bride-elect, he had to produce her to the license clerk and let him judge her age.

When the applicant went back after the girl, she asked the reason, of course, why she had to go along to get the license. When told that the law required her exhibition, she remarked, "Oh, you've got to show me, have you?"

This occurred many times during the first year of the law's effectiveness, and became a by-word, according to Mr. Knapp.

Pigs Driving Out Moslems.

The Moslem population of Macedonia is leaving the country in thousands, not because they are ill-treated by their conquerors, but because their religious susceptibilities are offended by the sight of pigs in the open places. These animals hitherto have been kept in seclusion by their Christian owners, as any straying porker met with short shrift from sons of the prophet. But, with the entrance of the allied troops into the province, the native pigs gained their freedom, and now they may be seen running about the streets in great numbers. Hence life has become impossible in Macedonia for the followers of Mahomet.

James Whitcomb Riley—Booster.

No human being has ever tried harder to pass along to others the honors the world has given him, or has exerted himself more to let his own sought glory light the way for others and divert the public's attention to those he believes worthy than has James Whitcomb Riley. He is more than a poet—he is the master booster of the planet, when he believes boost is deserved. He proves his greatness again and again by his unselfishness.—Indianapolis Star.

Anecdotes of Charles Reade.

Charles Reade's liberal drawings upon "authorities" in his passion for accuracy of detail gave rise to some foolish charges of plagiarism, particularly in the case of his masterpiece, "The Cloister and the Hearth." His reply to the charges was characteristic and clinching. "I milked 300 cows for it," said he, "but the cheese I made is mine." For eccentricities Reade can claim a high place even among authors, few of whom are without their fads. He could not write away from his own room, with its innumerable volumes of cuttings and indexes, and he could not write well, he declared, except when standing up. He never took lunch, terming that meal "an insult to one's breakfast," detested soup and beef, preferred herring to every other fish, was a connoisseur of wine, but never touched spirits, and loathed the very smell of tobacco.

Chin as Point of Beauty.

The habit of absent mindedly fingering the chin is imprudent because in doing so the skin may be stretched and the pores unduly enlarged, inducing wrinkles and extraneous matter to gather. HOTEL PROSPECT.

Nashville Man Said To Have His Eye on St. Charles Court.

The St. Charles Court hotel property, owned jointly by Blakey and Sprouse, will be sold for division Monday. The half interest formerly owned by Col. O. G. Sprouse was sold to his brother, W. M. Luigard, the Nashville restaurant man, had a representative here a few days ago looking over the property and is interested in it as a hotel property. It is considered likely that he will buy the property and convert it into a hotel. Col. Sprouse is in the city attending the fair this week.

Unusual Offer To Our Readers.

"JUST RUB IT ON"

YOM KIPPUR,

Or the Day of Atonement,
Wednesday, Sept. 30.

(H. L. Goldstein.)

Wednesday, September 30, is Yom Kippur, the most solemn day of the year in the Jewish calendar. It is a day that the Jew closes his business from sundown on Tuesday until sundown on Wednesday, and fasts for twenty-four hours. This has been written and explained for many years, but what it actually means to the Jew has never been fully explained.

To give the full definition of Yom Kippur is that it is the day when the Jew stands face to face with his Maker and reviews his past conduct, like a notleman who has lost his fortune and estates, but still retains his title, and asks himself the question, Have I conducted myself in accordance to my station? Am I still worthy of my title? When he finds himself at fault he tries to improve his ways.

To prove that this is the correct solution: How many criminals do you find among Jews? How many Jews do you see lying drunk in the gutter? How many disreputable characters do you find among the Jews? The reason is Yom Kippur.
On that day the Jew recounts his ancestral standing, which dates back thousand of years, when they were the noblest race in Palestine, and his nobility rises to overcome an evil conduct to which he may have lowered himself and to improve upon his past and be the noble character which his ancestors have been.

That explains Yom Kippur—Ex.

SECRETARY OF STATE CRECELIUS INDICTED.

SECRETARY OF STATE C. F. CRECELIUS.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 2—After exonerating Thomas S. Bares, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, from the charge of embezzling funds of the department, made by Secretary of State C. F. Crecelius, and declaring it could not find out who did steal the funds, the Franklin county grand jury Thursday indicted Sec'y of State C. F. Crecelius on three counts of obtaining money by false pretenses in connection with the violation of the statute regarding the farming and selling of public offices, and called upon the Attorney General to bring proceedings to vacate his office.

Good Sense.

To Lady Cardigan is attributed the following somewhat pert comment, when a very ignorant person was complimented on his good sense in her presence: "I don't wonder," she said,
"at his possessing a large stock of good sense. He never spends any."

Worth It.

"I understand that tenor keeps his voice in order by swallowing glycerin, menthol, camphor and oil of cinnamon," said the musician. "Great Scott!" replied the ordinary individual. "No wonder he insists on such high wages!"

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 2.—County attorneys are not entitled to 15 per cent. commissions on recoveries in suits to collect inheritance tax. A test case was brought by George Batterson, county attorney of Bourbon, against Auditor Bosworth in the Franklin circuit court to compel the auditor to allow him a commission on a collection of $28.75 from the administration of Laura Bell Judy.

The mandamus was granted, but the court of appeals reversed the judgment with direction to dismiss the petition.

operated on him, but with little effect. He was 46 years old.

Championship Games.

The National Baseball Commission has decided that the world's championship games between the Philadelphia Americans and the Boston Nationals will be played in Philadelphia Oct. 9 and 10 and in Boston Oct.
12 and 13. If more than four games are necessary, the fifth will be played in Philadelphia Oct. 14, and the sixth in Boston Oct. 15.

Woman Past Help.

Chandler, Okla.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Ella Flowers says: "I hardly know how to thank you for the good that Cardui has done me. Before I tried Cardui I thought I was past help, but after taking it I was relieved at once, and gained at least 10 pounds. Everybody says I look so much better. I am still improving greatly." Many women are completely worn out and discouraged, on account of womanly weakness. Are you? Have you not tried Cardui? It only needs a few doses to convince you that Cardui is just what you need. Try it to-day. It will cure your pains.

Question of Height.

Lady Southwark, in her recently published reminiscences, tells a story of an Irishman who was cutting turf near a bog when a friend came up to him, crying: "Patrick is stuck in the bog up to his ankles." "Don't worry, then," was the reply; "if he's only up to his ankles he can soon get out again!" "Yes, but he went in head first!" retorted the other.—Pearson's Weekly.

Thought on Patriotism.

It is to be feared that the patriotism of this day has but little regard for such common things as individual economy and providence, although it is by the practise of such virtues only that the genuine independence of the industrial classes is to be secured.—Samuel Smiles.

Diamonds have not yet advanced in price at M. D. Kelly's the Old Reliable Jeweler. Main Street opposite the Court house.

Real Philanthropy.

"And so," said the man who lives in a flat to his friend who is a commuter, "your next door neighbor, you say, is a real philanthropist." "You bet he is," said the commuter, with enthusiasm; "why, he bought $10 worth of flower seeds for my chickens last spring."—Ladies' Home Journal.

INSTANCE OF SCOTCH THRIFT

Railroad Clerk, Instead of Being Rewarded for Returning Lost Purse, Is Asked for Interest.

There was no doubt about the fact that Jack MacFaddy was a Scotsman. Last year, when journeying to the country on an important errand, he left his purse, containing nearly $500 in gold and silver, at the railway station from which he started.

He telegraphed the fact on his arrival and the purse was kept till his return a month later.

It was a young clerk who handed Jockie Mac F. his wee purse with the "spondulies" as he set foot out of the train, and certain wild hopes were making that young man's heart beat a trifle unevenly.

But our canny Scot counted his money unheeding, and when he'd finished he looked up long and suspiciously at the young man.

"Isn't it right, sir?" stammered the latter, in bewilderment.

"Right—right! It's right enough, but where's the interest, mon?" was MacFaddy's stern retort.

A Canal Comment.

"Charley dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "they are having a great deal of agitation about the big canal, aren't they?"

"Yes."

"Don't you know, I sometimes think it might have been better if we had been content with the old-fashioned canals where all the talking was done by the man who was driving the mule?"

HE WAS WISE.

Mrs. Benton Holme—You are always dwelling on the superiority of men over women. Why don't you show that superiority by demonstrating how to clean house?

Mr. Benton Holme—We show our superiority by refusing to have anything to do with house-cleaning.

Gentle Nature's Sadness.

"What side are you on in this debate?" asked the constituent.

"I don't like to say," replied the young statesman. "My own opinions don't matter so much, but it worries me to realize that whatever way I vote I'm almost sure to hurt somebody's feelings."

Gloomy Calculator.

"Women's clothes don't cost as much as they used to," said the consoling theorist.

"I don't see any difference," replied Mr. Growcher. "After you've paid the rent and the grocery bill they continue to cost all that's left."

Lofty Approval.

"Don't you admire George Washington?"

"Oh, yes," replied the serene citizen. "So far as I am able to judge, he managed matters pretty much as I should have done under the same circumstances."

Might Help Some.

Bill—A New Jersey inventor has patented a semaphore railroad signal in which the arm is outlined with a vacuum tube electric light so it may be readily seen at night.

Jill—Wonder if they could be utilized on women's elongated hatpins?

Some Reformer.

Mrs. Bacon—A policeman in Ottawa, Ill., has the distinction of reforming that town in one month.

Mr. Bacon—Good! Even if her husband did think he was the whole town.

The Last Word.

"I always let my wife have the last word," said Mr. Meekton.

"But do you applaud what she says?"

"What's the use? She goes on taking encores anyhow."

Good Old Times.

"Father," said the small but pert boy, "didn't Esau sell his birthright for a mess of pottage?"

"Yes, my son."

"I'll bet! That was some high cost of living, wasn't it?"

Otherwise Engaged.

"Biggins' boy doesn't say as many bright things as he used to."

"No. Biggins has taken to tango dancing, and hasn't time to think 'em up."

To the Bitter End.

Redd—What do you think of the new baseball league?

Greene—It means war in the baseball world.

"Sure; it will be diamond cut diamond."

TIME FOR A NEW WARDROBE

Little Incident That Made Mother Realize Her Sartorial Appearance Was Not Impressive.

A careful mother, whose baby had fallen asleep in his carriage in the park, found in seeking to make him comfortable that the sun was shining from one direction and a cold wind blowing from another. After careful consideration and numerous turnings, she decided to risk his tightly closed eyes to a little sunshine rather than to expose him to the chilly breeze.

"I don't know who your mistress is," it said, "but I shall make it my business to find out and report you to her. The idea of your risking that baby's eyes in that sunshine! I am a doctor's wife."

Several times did the careful mother attempt vainly to interrupt and explain. Then—"I am grateful for your interest, madam," she said, "and I happen to be the child's mother. Also, I am a doctor's wife and a nurse as well."

As the stern voice moved on she turned to another careful mother on the bench.

"I knew this coat was old," she said, "but do I look as bad as that?"

LITTLE LETTER MEANT MUCH

Omission of Final "f" in Word of Telegram Cost Sender Neat Little Sum of Money.

Shakespeare has told us that there is "much virtue in an 'f'." But if he had lived in the twentieth instead of the sixteenth century, he would have realized there is much more virtue—or, at any rate, value—in the letter "f" alone, and for this reason:

The other day the agent of a manufacturer found himself with a very large stock of goods on hand for which he could realize nothing like the market price, when suddenly in sailed a probable purchaser and offered to take the whole line if a substantial reduction were made for cash.

The agent wired to his principal as to what discount he would allow to clear the stock, and the reply sent by telegram was "You can sell for a third off the original price." But the careless telegraphist left out the second "f" in the word "off," so that the telegram read, "You can sell for a third 'o' the original price."

The agent did so, and succeeded in losing for his principal some $5,000 of actual cash upon the transaction.

PUT HIS OWN MONEY IN.

Before the passage of the present strict banking laws in Wisconsin, starting a bank was a comparatively simple proposition. The surprisingly small amount of capital needed is well illustrated by the story a prosperous country town banker told on himself when asked how he happened to enter the banking business.

"Well," he said, "I didn't have much else to do, so I rented an empty store building and painted 'Bank' on the window. The first day I was open for business a man came in and deposited $100 with me; the second day another man dropped in and deposited $250, and so, by George, along about the third day I got confidence enough in the bank to put in a hundred myself."—Everybody's Magazine.

ALAS, TOO TRUE.

"There are more important things in life than money."

"Yes; but you haven't the leisure to notice them, if you haven't got the coin."—Judge.

VARIABLE STANDARDS.

"When does spring really begin?" "The answer depends entirely on whether you leave it to the poets, the dressmakers or the mathematicians."

NO QUESTION IN HIS CASE.

"Do they allow children in this apartment building?"

"I should say they do," replied the janitor. "I have six of 'em."

THE RIGHT CHAP.

"John, we must have baby's photograph taken right away."

"All right; I'll speak to a moving-picture man."

SHOULD SAY NOT.

"A man is soon forgotten after he is dead," mused Mrs. Gabb.

"Not if you marry his widow," replied Mr. Gabb.—Exchange.

WOMEN IN THE PROFESSIONS

One of Them Expresses Wonder Why
They Should Have Neglected Opportunity So Long.

They tell us now that we are the fighting sex. Why have we been so long? Ardent, beautiful, sweet as a nut, with her nut-brown eyes under lids like pointed white flames, with her rippling wing of hair in the same sweet, hot tones, with her tall grace and grave glance and white, expert, sensitive hands—the scientist's hands which take account of a hair—why is she here—this woman —bending over her tubes and flasks and microscopes instead of in a drawing-room, with bowls of white hyacinths at her elbow? Why, within sixty years after medicine is open to women, are ten thousand practising in this country alone? Is it because we are tired of ignorance in pity?

If there were no other field for women doctors, unmarried mothers would make a place in the world for them. If there is any psychology of sex, or sex antagonism, or sisterhood among women, or any of the other things we talk of so gaily in our search to get at the truth about men and women, surely it is easier to look into a woman's eyes than into a man's when you hear that you are to undertake motherhood outside the plan society was for this service to it.

"I am a woman myself and I know what you bear"—the eyes of the woman doctor answer to those others which meet hers in their first startled comprehension.—Metropolitan.

PHILOSOPHIC VIEW OF AGE

Looked At In Its Proper Aspect It May Be Greatly Robbed of Its Terrors.

As the body ages, and it ages rapidly, of course, it is subject to a multitude of infirmities, most of which are rare in its youth. We have grown accustomed to associating these infirmities with age, therefore, and are quite likely to view their presence as a demonstration of advancing years. Such, indeed, it is, but only in relation to the body. "I feel old," is a very common expression, but one which is very far from the exact truth. To illustrate: I notice that the rheumatism grips my shoulder quite frequently of late, especially in damp weather, although such an attack was quite unknown in the first sixty years of my life.
Old age? Of the body, perhaps, but not of me. You had the rheumatism when he was barely fifteen. The sensation was to him precisely what it is to me and the treatment differed very little, if at all. I need spectacles now, but many children need them, too. My step is not as sure as it used to be, but as far as I can observe, it affects me as it would have done had some weakness attacked my legs fifty years ago. My hair is thin and white, but I know many bald heads under thirty, and young men have turned gray over night.—U. V. Wilson, in the Atlantic.

STERILIZING SOIL BY STEAM.

Growers of tomatoes, cucumbers and similar vegetables for the London market have for some time been injecting steam into the soil with the intention of destroying certain insects and slugs. It is said the plan works very well for that purpose, but the practise brought to light an unexpected fact, namely, that the soil thus treated increased greatly in fertility; so greatly, in fact, that the ordinary amount of manure cannot be used afterward.

This effect has been explained as being due to the sterilization produced by the steam, which kills the phagocytes or protozoa which in ordinary circumstances keep down the number of bacteria in the soil whose operations are beneficent in turning organic nitrogen into a form suitable for plant food. It may be, however, that the large amount of steam-destroyed life has contributed its own store of nitrogen.

CONSIDER THE BOY PROBLEM

Matter of Question Whether It Ever
Will Be, or Can Be, Successfully Solved.

Wars come and go, rulers fall from power, but the boy problem is ever in the public prints. Reading the continuous lamentations with earnest attention, it seems that the boy is always in danger of growing up and becoming a man and that he must be watched very closely. On the other hand, some of 'em become sissies, a fate that is distinctly more to be regretted, although the uplifters say nothing about it. Assisting this pernicious instinct is the boy's own ardent desire to be a man. And that is only excelled by his desire, when that happy estate is reached, to become a boy again. The great joke on every boy is the exchange of boyhood for manhood, and to this all men contribute, more out of a spirit of cynicism and revenge than anything else.

As a matter of fact, the boy of fourteen and sixteen knows more things worth knowing and fewer things that are best left unknown than the man of forty or sixty. The wisest thing in the world is the boy in his early teens, and his only folly at all is growing out of them. Life is thoroughly complete for the boy, and if only there were no men to encourage an ambition toward man-hood's privileges, all would be well.
It is while he is Christopher Columbusing around in those early days that he learns all the human nature there is. Relationships are very direct and associations intimate. There is little equivocation, and subtlety has the frankness of earnestness instead of the duplicity of deceit. Impressions are vivid and the way to make a good, steadfast, lifelong enemy is to give needless offense to a boy of ten years old.

The boy of today knows far more than his father will ever suspect, but, under careful tutelage and

ONLY HOLES LEFT.

Nevada has only a hole in the ground to show for the $500,000,000 taken from the Comstock mines.
Nearly all that wealth went outside the desert state—and has remained outside. One big fortune from Nevada moved to London. Just recently the $25,000,000 Mills estate in New York was settled and most of that came from Nevada. California got a large slice of the Comstock wealth. A lot more went to Mackay and paid for cables under the ocean.
A comfortable slice of Pennsylvania oil flowed forever to the Rockefellers and their friends in other states.
What has Pennsylvania to show for the 50,000,000 tons of anthracite that are annually shipped across her borders never to come back? The greatest single fortune derived from Pennsylvania soft coal belongs to a man who lives in New York.

POSTOFFICE PROPOSITION

Now Being Considered by The Government at Washington.

FOR Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

Postmaster Williamson Is Expecting an Early Reply By Wire.

Thursday night the Directors of the Y. M. C. A. Building, across the street from the present postoffice and the new government building, submitted a proposition to Postmaster Williamson for its use as a temporary postoffice, which he wired to Washington. It is for a rental of $200 a month for three months, and $100 a month thereafter. Nearly all the first payments would be needed to put the building in order. Mr. Williamson recommended the acceptance of the proposition and expects to receive a favorable reply at any time.

THE AUTO PARADE

The $25 Prize For Decorated Car Awarded to J. J. Metcalfe.

The automobile parade was participated in Thursday night by 20 cars, some of them beautifully decorated with ribbons and flowers. Others not decorated, were filled with pretty girls. Conspicuous among those most tastefully decorated were the cars of J. J. Metcalfe, W. T. Tandy, S. W. Tinsley and T. W. Long.

The cars were first maneuvered in front of the stand and then circled the grounds on the race track. John F. Bible was master of ceremonies during the parade and announced the following awards:

Most handsomely decorated car, J. J. Metcalfe

Best lady driver, Miss Nell Tandy.

Handsome car, the new Chalmers of L. M. Cayce.

Most beautiful ladies in one car, Mrs. B. O. McReynolds, Misses Bessie Wallis, Alice Radford, Agnes Flack, Addie Green, Nell Tandy and Mrs. M. G. Moore. Car driven by Miss Nell Tandy. Most beautiful lady in the parade, Mrs. B. O. McReynolds first and Miss Bessie Wallace second.

Mr. J. J. Metcalfe whose car received the first prize, was accompanied by a party of ladies and children, who showered the crowd in front of the stand and in the boxes with flowers thrown from the vehicle. The program of the horse show followed the automobile parade.

Mr. English Leaves.

Rev. Logan B. English, who has resigned as pastor of Salem Baptist church, has entered the Theological Seminary at Louisville to finish his education. His church gave him up reluctantly and hopes to have him back again.

Rewards of $500.

Gov. McCreary and County Judge Knight have offered rewards aggregating $500 for the apprehension of the assassin of John M. Renshaw. The negro in jail is still being held on suspicion.

Residence Sold.

W. H. Tibbs this week sold his residence on Fourteenth street to W. R. Hammonds, of Gracey, the price being private.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS

Bank at Pembroke Failed To Open Doors For Business Yesterday Morning.

The Farmers and Merchants Bank at Pembroke failed to open its doors yesterday morning and the State Bank Commissioner will appoint a receiver to adjust its affairs.

The bank was organized in 1893 and was capitalized at $40,000, but the capital was recently reduced.

W. H. Jones was president and J. W. Cross cashier. Other directors were J. B. Carter, R. J. Downer, T. D. Jameson, Lyman McCombs and J. J. Garrett, all prominent and substantial citizens. It is hoped the bank's embarrassments may prove to be only temporary.

EXECUTIVE REQUIREMENT OF TEACHERS.

As explained by General Rye in his Camden speech, applicants for certificates of eligibility for teachers in the public schools of Tennessee are required to stand examinations to establish their fitness. They are asked a number of questions relating to the history of the state. In this list of questions submitted by Governor Hooper's examining boards were these:

Name two men who held the office of governor for twelve years.

Name three recent legislative acts hearing upon education.

Of what special significance and importance has Governor Hooper's administration been to the state? What were the conditions which brought about his election?

Name the governors since B. B. Taylor's last administration and the chief happenings under the best.

Observe the utter lack of political significance in them all.

The first, of course, carries with it the pleasing assumption that if two governors held the office for twelve years, Governor Hooper, who is one governor, or the half of two Governors, should hold it one-half of twelve years, which by arithmetical calculation is six years, or three whole terms. The question not only develops the amount of historical research of which the applicant is capable but also measures to a specific degree his mathematical talent.

The second one limits a reply to "recent" legislative acts and this gives the applicant an opportunity for paying tribute to the educational glory, which, it is conceived, is peculiarly a Hooper administration asset. Imagine the poor school teacher who, greedy for a certificate, would be rash enough to stretch the "recent" legislation beyond the four years of Hooper's incumbency.

The next one, however, is the gem of the lot. What an opportunity is offered the teacher to elaborate! How vast the chance to place bouquets of praise upon the shrine of Hooperism! And the last paragraph! No politics! Pity the poor devil who didn't page forth upon his foolscap the utter degeneracy of political conditions until the man and the hour met in the person of Hooper. How gratifying to the latter must have been a perusal of the replies of those on the gridiron.

It is unlikely that there were ever perpetrated upon any bunch of innocent school teachers such a list. How faithfully they reflect the character of the head of the state government.

There may be, however, some difference of opinion among the teachers as to what has been the chief happening under the best governor since Bob Taylor's last administration, but no teacher with normal vision and a natural sense of self-preservation would hesitate for a single instant to settle on Hooper, not only as the best governor since Bob Taylor's last administration but as the best the great state of Tennessee has been honored and blessed with.—Tennessean.

Indicted for Murder.

An indictment for first degree murder was returned against Judge K. Greer, the slayer of Charles Troutman, at Paducah. Greer has spent most of the time since the killing in jail here, where he was brought a few days after the tragedy for safe-keeping.

BILLIARD PLAYERS'

LEAGUE OPENS OCT. 5th.

The Champion Billiard Players' League begins its initial season on Monday, October 5th. It has been but a few weeks since this new organization was formed but so rapidly has the movement progressed that everything is in readiness for the opening and the success of the big venture is already assured.

That all the preliminary work has been completed and the opening is to be on schedule time reflects much credit upon the energy and systematic effort of those who are promoting the plan.

Eight of the foremost players of the world will compete during the season of seven months for the honors of the League and one hundred and forty cities have been granted franchises in each of which four league contests will be held.

The teams for the first swing around the circuits and the cities for the opening games have just been announced by President Burton Mank.

Team number one, composed of Walker Cochran, the boy wonder and the youngest member of the League, and Ora Morningstar, will start on their tour at Dowagiac, Mich. This circuit is through southern Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois, ending after five weeks at Chicago.

Albert Cutler and Calvin Demarest compose the second team which will make its league debut at Detroit. This circuit extends southwest through Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas and ends at Springfield, Ohio returning through Tennessee and Kentucky.

BIG CIRCUS COUNTS NOSES MONTHLY

Census of Ringling Show Totals 1371 People, Representing 19 Different Nationalities.

CARRY 1000 WILD ANIMALS.

Taking the census of a circus the size of Ringling Brothers is no small task, though the recorders find all for whom they seek within the area of the twenty acres covered by the tents of the canvas city.

In this moving municipality such a procedure is pursued once each month throughout the entire circus season. Three men begin operations very early in the morning and usually require the entire day to complete the task. The last census of the Ringling Brothers' circus disclosed a population of 1,371 men, women and children; 735 horses, 41 elephants, 32 camels, 10 zebras, 5 giraffes and 1003 wild animals. The greatest increase over past seasons is evidenced in the number of people. This is explained by the fact that the new spectacle of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba is being presented upon a much larger scale than any production of this nature yet offered by Ringling Brothers.

One hundred more dancing girls are introduced in the ballets than ever before, and other features have been enlarged in similar proportion. The new spectacles has also been responsible for the increase in the train facilities, a total of 89 double-length cars now being required to haul the wonders of this marvelous circus. Gigantic means are employed to feed this city of Ringlingville. More than 4,000 meals are served daily to its people alone in a vast canvas hotel said to be the largest ever traveled. The range upon which all fried and broiled stuffs are prepared, is on wheels and weighs upwards of ten tons. It is not unusual to hear the head chief place an order for 5,000 griddle cakes and proportionate amount of eggs and bacon for a single breakfast. Practically all purchases are made daily and in the particular city in which the circus is to exhibit. The average daily expense of running the commissary department is over $2,000. Ringling Brothers will exhibit here Wednesday Oct. 21.—Advertisement.

Now, Isn't This So?

A traveling sales agent visiting a large factory made a bet with the manager that he would pick out all the married men among the employees. Accordingly he stationed himself at the door as they came back from dinner and mentioned all those whom he believed to be married, and in almost every case he was right. "How do you do it?" asked the manager in amazement. "Oh, it's quite simple," said the traveler, "quite simple. The married men all wipe their feet on the mat; the single men don't."
